The director of the Pathological Institute of the University of Heidelberg, Peter Schirmacher, was alarmed after performing an autopsy on 40 people who died within two weeks of vaccination against the COVID-19 or CCP (Chinese Communist Party) virus.

Schirmacher warns that 30 percent to 40 percent of those people would have died from “rare, severe side effects of the vaccination—such as cerebral vein thrombosis or autoimmune diseases,” according to Free West Media on Aug. 3.

Not only does this pathologist not consider himself anti-vaccine, but he himself took the experimental drug, and says he does not intend to cause panic with the results of his work as a pathologist.

He also fears that numerous vaccine deaths go unreported and that pathologists are not even aware of many possible cases.

He believes that a basic problem is that vaccinated people often do not even die under clinical observation, and he calls for more autopsies of these patients.

“The coroner does not establish a context with the vaccination and certifies a natural death, and the patient is buried,” Schirmacher described.

He added, “Or he certifies an unclear manner of death and the public prosecutor’s office sees no external fault and releases the body for burial.”

Schirmacher also runs a state-subsidized COVID deceased persons autopsy project, and his reputation is unblemished.

In fact, the Federal Association of Pathologists had already called in March in a letter to Health Minister Jens Spahn (CDU) for widespread autopsies of people after their post-vaccination death, but this went unanswered.

As soon as Schirmacher published the results of his work, the government authorities denied it without providing any data, but many of his colleagues immediately backed him up.

In response to some colleagues who criticized him, Schirmacher said: “The colleagues are definitely wrong because they cannot assess this specific question competently.”

For its part, the Federal Association of German Pathologists stated that more autopsies of deceased vaccinees should be performed within a certain period of time after vaccination.

The head of the “Autopsy Working Group” of the same association wanted to raise awareness among general practitioners and health authorities.

In this regard, he urged physicians of patients who died in the days or weeks following vaccination to request an autopsy in case of doubt.

For some, Schirmacher’s revelations are explosive and even dangerous, since they could appear to be an attack on the huge business of the big pharmaceutical companies.

In fact, several deaths of people who refused, or eventually represented a threat to the vaccination campaign, generated such concerns.

Likewise, many have been persecuted by the media and social networks such as Twitter, censoring messages that dissent from the pro-vaccination narrative.

More recently, the renowned scientist who invented the messenger RNA technology applied to the vaccine against covid, Dr. Robert Malone, denounced that he received alerts to hire personal security because his life is in danger.

He later clarified that he did not suffer from suicidal tendencies. “So, I guess I have to say this. I am not suicidal. I am at peace with myself and the world,” he wrote on July 18.

Dr. Malone believes that in the campaigns by governments and the pharmaceutical industry to vaccinate all people, coercion has been exercised in their eagerness to apply to all people the experimental drug that many scientists have already denounced as risky.
